

SP+ Fund 2025 Application Guidelines (ECR Program)

(Fund to Support International Research Collaboration with Strategic Partner Institutions, Etc.)

Purpose of the Fund

In order to promote cross-disciplinary research exchange by each of its faculties and departments and promote collaborative research and personnel mobility in new academic fields, Kyoto University has concluded Strategic Partnership Agreements with the five universities indicated below (hereinafter referred to as “SP institutions”) based on agreement at the presidential (executive) level.

The SP+ Fund is intended to further deepen sustainable research exchange with SP institutions and support progressive international research collaboration with multiple institutions centered around each SP institution. The fund has two main programs: the General Program, which provides support for international research projects in collaboration with SP institutions, etc., and the ECR (early-career researcher) Program, which provides support for ECR exchanges with SP institutions.

These application guidelines are for the ECR Program.

As mentioned above, the ECR Program provides travel expenses for dispatching early-career researchers to engage in research at SP institutions or to invite early-career researchers from SP institutions to engage in research at Kyoto University.

*One early-career researcher may be dispatched or invited per application.

*The destination of early-career researchers dispatched from Kyoto University must be one of the university’s SP institutions.

Please refer to the next page for details.
